Welcome to the 24th Annual University Athletic Association Swimming & Diving Championships

The men's and women's teams of Emory University swept the team titles for the twelfth consecutive time at the four day 2010 University Athletic Association Swimming and Diving Championship in Atlanta, Georgia.

Accumulating a whopping 2065 points, the Emory women's impressive victory broke their previous UAA Championship three heat scoring format point total record, set in 2008. Additionally, the win marks the Eagle women's 19th overall UAA title. In second place in the women's competition was the University of Chicago with 1,379 points, followed by New York University (1,188.5), Carnegie Mellon University (1,011), University of Rochester (811), Washington University (782), Case Western Reserve University (592.5), and Brandeis University (521). The Emory men's team was able to earn 1,855 points to defend their 2009 championship title, putting them 331 points ahead of second place Carnegie Mellon (1,524). Third place in the men's competition was awarded to Chicago (1,180), with Washington (1,011.5), NYU (904), Case (798.5), Rochester (632.5), and Brandeis (547.5) rounding out the rest of the meet's standings.

Tatum Gormley of NYU was presented with the UAA Women's Rookie of the Year award, as a result of her three NCAA provisional qualifying marks: in the 400 yard individual medley (4:31.62), the 200-yard butterfly (2:08.26), and in her second place finish in the 200-yard individual medley (2:07.79). The UAA Women's Swimmer of the Year Award was shared by co-recipients Ruth Westby and Liz Horvat, both of Emory. Westby, a senior, was a part of four title winning relays, three of which earned NCAA provisional qualifying times and one which earned an NCAA automatic qualifying time. She also earned three individual titles, all of which were NCAA automatic qualifying marks. In doing so, Westby set two individual UAA meet records, in the 200-yard freestyle (1:50.69) and the 100-yard freestyle (50.55), and additionally, she was a member of relay teams that set UAA meet records in the 200-yard freestyle relay (1:34.53), and the 400-yard freestyle relay (3:27.47). Her non-record victories were in the 50-yard freestyle (23.53), the 400-yard medley relay (3:52.84), and in the 800-yard freestyle relay (7:37.11). Junior teammate Liz Horvat also enjoyed a significant level of success, participating in the 500-yard freestyle (4:52.98), the 400-yard individual medley (4:23.45), and the 1,650-yard freestyle (16:48.38). With these times, Horvat earned three individual titles, all of which set UAA meet records and were NCAA automatic qualifying times.

On the men's side, the UAA Rookie of the Year Award went to Daniel Glaser-Garbrick of Carnegie Mellon. He earned this award as a result of his participation on the Tartans' second place 400-yard medley relay team (3:26.18), as well as his individual performances in the 400-yard individual medley (4:06.75) and the 200-yard butterfly (1:52.43), which was good for a third-place finish. Furthermore, all three of Glaser-Garbrick events were NCAA qualifying times. The UAA Men's Swimmer of the Year award went to NYU senior Eric Pcholinski. Pcholinski, earned two individual titles, in the 50-yard freestyle (20.94) and the 100-yard freestyle (45.53), both of which were NCAA qualifying times. He also was a member of the Violets' third place 200-yard freestyle relay team. The UAA Diver of the Year Awards went to Max Norris, a junior at NYU, and freshman Rebecca Schmidt of Chicago. To earn these accolades, Norris and Schmidt both swept their respective one-meter and three-meter dives, while also posting NCAA qualifying scores in doing so.

Statement on Sportsmanship

The members of the University Athletic Association are committed to principles of good sportsmanship. We believe that all student-athletes, coaches, and spectators should strive to represent the very best spirit and tradition of intercollegiate athletics. We request your cooperation by supporting the participants and officials in a positive manner. Thank you.

The UAA — Where Theory Meets Practice

For 24 years, the University Athletic Association continues to serve as a bold statement of the vision of its founders — that the pursuit of academic and athletic excellence are complementary goals and can be achieved without the compromise of one by the other. The members of the UAA hold that the success of intercollegiate athletics is wholly dependent upon institutional integrity and the ability of institutions to complete the full integration of athletics into the academic fabric of higher education.

The UAA is a significant expression of the principle that the provision of a high-quality college athletic experience is worth the commitment required of an institution. It is worthwhile not only because it benefits the student-athletes, but also because it benefits the entire campus community and, in turn, the institution itself. Perhaps more importantly, the UAA is a strong statement that the success of intercollegiate athletics is wholly dependent upon institutional integrity and the ability of institutions to complete the full integration of athletics into the academic fabric of higher education.

Members of the UAA share the belief that academic excellence and athletic excellence are not mutually exclusive. Implicit in this belief are several sets of assumptions. The first is that the academic enterprise is the primary element. Student-athletes are just that — students first and athletes second.

The theoretical . . .

Academic excellence and athletic excellence are not mutually exclusive.

The academic enterprise is the primary element.

Athletic excellence properly relates to the caliber of experience offered to students.

Athletic programs should reflect the quality of the academic environment within which they exist.

A consistent and challenging level of athletic competition should be provided for both women and men.

The second set of assumptions has to do with athletic excellence. Athletic excellence is not to be confused with a win-at-all-costs attitude. It properly relates to the caliber of experience offered to students who participate in intercollegiate athletics. Athletic teams should have the benefit of qualified coaching — capable individuals chosen for professional competence and commitment to putting the welfare of the student first. They should play and practice in first-rate facilities at reasonable times. Their equipment should be safe, of high quality, and conducive to the best performance possible. A consistent and challenging level of athletic competition should be provided to both women and men.

The final assumptions concern what might be termed a proper athletic emphasis. Athletic programs are extracurricular activities conducted for students and should be given consideration similar to that accorded other such institutionally sponsored activities. They should not only complement the academic experience, but should also reflect the quality of the academic environment within which they exist. Division III is an approach to athletics — not a synonym for third-rate.

The University Athletic Association sponsors competition in 22 sports — twelve sports for men and ten sports for women — including football, soccer, cross country, volleyball, basketball, fencing, wrestling, swimming and diving, indoor track and field, baseball, softball, outdoor track and field, tennis, and golf.

Many student-athletes from UAA institutions have been recognized for their achievements as scholars and athletes. During the 2009-10 academic year, 24 student-athletes from UAA institutions were recognized as College Sports Information Directors of America (CoSIDA) Academic All-Americans, 153 received All-America honors in team or individual sports, and 19 garnered individual national championship accolades.

In addition, six student-athletes from UAA institutions were among the select group of seniors across the country named NCAA Postgraduate Scholars.

Teams throughout the UAA are perennial contenders for post-season play. In 2009-10, UAA teams were selected or qualified to compete in NCAA championship competition in basketball, football, golf, softball, volleyball and wrestling. Men's and women's championships in basketball, cross country, fencing, soccer, swimming and diving, tennis, and track and field. UAA schools captured national championships in women's basketball, women's swimming and diving, and volleyball. Association teams also finished as national runner-up in women's soccer and tennis. In all, 19 UAA teams posted top-ten finishes in their national championships, and 15 others finished in the top twenty.

The actual . . .

In 2009-10, 24 student-athletes from UAA institutions were recognized as CoSIDA Academic All-Americans and six were named NCAA Postgraduate Scholars.

153 UAA student-athletes received All-America honors with 19 garnering individual national championship or Player of the Year accolades.

In 2009-10 NCAA championship competition, 19 UAA teams finished in the top 10 in their national championships, while another 15 finished in the top 20.

“The University of Rochester, founded in 1850, is one of the leading private research universities in the nation.”

since 1850...

Undergraduates from throughout the country and abroad take advantage of the distinction and variety of its academic programs. At the same time, they discover that it is a university on a personal scale, with attention to the individual not found at the much larger institutions that are its peers.

Some 5,000 full-time undergraduates and 3,000 full-time graduate students are enrolled at Rochester, studying in programs ranging through the postdoctoral levels in the humanities, the social sciences, the natural sciences, and the professional fields of education, engineering, management, medicine, music, and nursing.

The University is committed to working with families to enable all qualified students to attend, regardless of financial circumstances. Merit scholarships are awarded to students who demonstrate academic achievement and potential.
