

Start of Classes in Spring 2021

Please note the following details and instructions on start dates for courses in Spring 2021.

Undergraduate courses in the College will begin on February 1. This includes courses in the Undergraduate Business Program with the Simon School. The Eastman School of Music will also begin their classes for the spring semester on February 1.

Courses with the School of Medicine and Dentistry will begin on January 13. Undergraduate students taking graduate courses in SMD should expect that these courses will start on January 13 and prepare accordingly. However, undergraduates taking SMD graduate courses will be able to take remotely until February 1st and after February first will be expected to participate in the course as the course is originally designated (note the vast majority of SMD lecture based courses are online). The only exception to this are several undergraduate-only courses offered by SMD faculty - BCH 308, MHB 220, and MHB 230. These courses will start on February 1 with undergraduate courses in the other schools.

In addition, students participating in independent research (395) courses at SMD may be expected to start remote work associated with those courses as early as January 13. Students should reach out to the instructor to confirm arrangements. Instructors have been notified that students will not be able to participate in-person in laboratories or other settings until February 1.

The School of Nursing will also start its courses for Spring 2021 on January 13. Students considering taking courses in the School of Nursing should reach out to the instructor with any questions on learning remotely for the start of the semester.

The Warner School of Education classes will be fully online, start on February 1, 2021, and are published in UR Student – for information on registering please contact registrar@warner.rochester.edu. Students considering taking courses in the Warner School should reach out to the instructor with any questions regarding course delivery if not already listed (i.e., synchronous or asynchronous sessions).
